The key benefit offered by the new system is the option for administrators to allow users to book a licence out from the network for a chosen number of days – or ‘roaming’ as it is popularly called. For example, a particular presentation off-site or for use at home a licence is transferred to the local computer and will automatically return to the network after the specified time frame.

A second advance with this new technology is instant activation. A code is issued with the software, which is stored in a central database and linked to the internet. After the installation, you simply enter the code and your internet connection will enable automatic activation of your software. Simple, quick and easy. There are also email and fax options if instant activation is not for you.

Dongles, in the future will be included in the Reprise licence system and with them the benefits of instant activation will be available to all. We’ll be announcing this option at a later date.

Users of the OLicensing system may continue to use this system at present but we do encourage you to update your systems to Reprise licensing to get the extra benefits at no extra charge. Please contact your local support to request more information on this.
